Join Us and Discover the Power

Special Olympics Utah is much more than sports. It is a movement dedicated to providing individuals with intellectual disabilities an opportunity to succeed on the playing field — and in life.

Through the power of sports, people with intellectual disabilities discover new strengths and abilities, skills and success. Our athletes find joy, confidence and fulfillment -- on the playing field and in life. They also influence people in their communities and elsewhere to open their hearts to a wider world of human talents and potential.

Today we ask you to join the movement and Discover the Power by becoming a sponsor of the 2019 Black & White Bocce Ball. The night promises to be an extraordinary experience full of inspiration, motivation, and celebration.

BECOMING A CORPORATE SPONSOR

WHY BECOME A CORPORATE PARTNER?

You are supporting Special Olympics Utah's mission to provide year-round sport training and competition for individuals with intellectual disabilities throughout Utah at no cost to the athletes — or their families.

Positioning yourself as a partner of Special Olympics Utah – one of the largest and most respected sport organizations in the world - will bolster your company's reputation and demonstrate your commitment to serving your community.

- Founded in 1968 by Eunice Kennedy Shriver, Special Olympics has grown from a backyard summer camp for people with intellectual disabilities to a global movement, and has been changing lives and attitudes ever since.
- Individuals who compete in Special Olympics develop improved physical fitness and motor skills and greater self-confidence. They exhibit courage and enthusiasm and build lasting friendships. These life skills enhance their ability to live normal productive lives. More than ever, Special Olympics athletes volunteer, hold jobs, own homes, go to school and like everyone else, enjoy full and successful lives.
- Special Olympics' research and evaluation work has advanced knowledge of the needs of people with intellectual disabilities (ID) and their families and has improved knowledge of the cultural and environmental factors that are obstacles to people with ID reaching their full potential. Special Olympics' research is a catalytic force for social and policy change around the globe.
- Special Olympics receives funding in support of the movement from individuals, corporations, foundations, government and restricted grants. The vast majority of funding received is from individuals through the Special Olympics direct mail program.

EVENT HISTORY

With the launch of the Black and White Bocce Ball in 2016, Special Olympics Utah created a fun, sporty and glamorous night of inclusion where guests are invited to play bocce alongside our Special Olympics Utah athletes.

OUR VISION

Special Olympics Utah's vision is to create inclusive communities where those with or without intellectual disabilities participate in activities together.

YOUR SUPPORT

Proceeds from the evening are dedicated to empowering individuals with intellectual disabilities to become physically fit, productive and respected members of society through sports training and competitions.

Special Olympics Utah transforms communities and brings people together through the events and programs throughout Utah.

OUR MISSION IS SIMPLE

The mission of Special Olympics Utah is to provide year-round sports training and athletic competition in a variety of Olympic-type sports for children and adults with intellectual disabilities. This gives them continuing opportunities to develop physical fitness, demonstrate courage, experience joy and participate in a sharing of gifts, skills and friendship with their families, other Special Olympics athletes and the community.

Every action we take to Discover the Power through all Special Olympics activities reflect the values, standards, traditions, ceremonies, and events embodied in the modern Olympic movement. These Olympic-type activities have been broadened and enriched to celebrate the moral and spiritual qualities of persons with intellectual disabilities to enhance their dignity and self-esteem.

AREAS OF INTEREST – SPECIAL OLYMPICS RESEARCH:

The Scope of the Need.

Before anything can be done to help people with ID live fuller, more satisfying lives, policy-makers and others need to know as much as possible about the difficulties they face. Special Olympics' research has helped fill this knowledge gap by investigating topics such as the attitudes the public has towards people with ID, the general perception of their capabilities, barriers to employment and other aspects of community inclusion, and their health status and access to quality health care.

The Scope of Special Olympics.

Many people are unaware of the size of Special Olympics and the extent of its programming, but many people think of Special Olympics as an occasional sporting event in the United States that benefits children with ID. While this may have been true decades ago, today Special Olympics is so much more. To help build understanding of Special Olympics, the organization compiles data about itself such as the number of athletes we reach and the international scope of our programming.

The Impact of Special Olympics.

Special Olympics research and evaluation has shown that the movement has made a significant impact on its athletes, the families of athletes, and the community at large. Special Olympics has collected data on the effect on athlete self-esteem, ability to be employed, and social skills, as well as the influence participation has on volunteers' attitudes, family members' cohesiveness, and other impacts.

Special Olympics Initiatives.

Central to the success of Special Olympics programming is the evaluation of its initiatives. By thorough and scientific examination, Special Olympics can determine the effectiveness of its programs and make changes to them to maximize impact.
